

HeBrews

The book of Hebrews was written to a group of Christians who were facing difficult times. They needed the reassurance that what, and even more importantly, who, they believed in was absolutely trustworthy. And they needed encouragement that would help them to persevere in persecution. In his attempt to provide for these needs, the unidentified author of Hebrews presents a water-tight defense of Jesus Christ, in whom they have believed, along with examples, exhortation, and encouragement to stay in the race.
